

MASTERING THE BUSINESS OF DESIGN Programs

The Imperative to Master the Business of Design

Design firm leaders cite the ongoing need to continually strengthen their leader's business management and entrepreneurial expertise.

Leading a healthy design firm over the long term is not entirely about being an expert architect, designer, or engineer--- it's also about developing leaders with the ability to master the twists and turns of a changing workforce and dynamic business environment to ensure the long term viability and success of the firm.

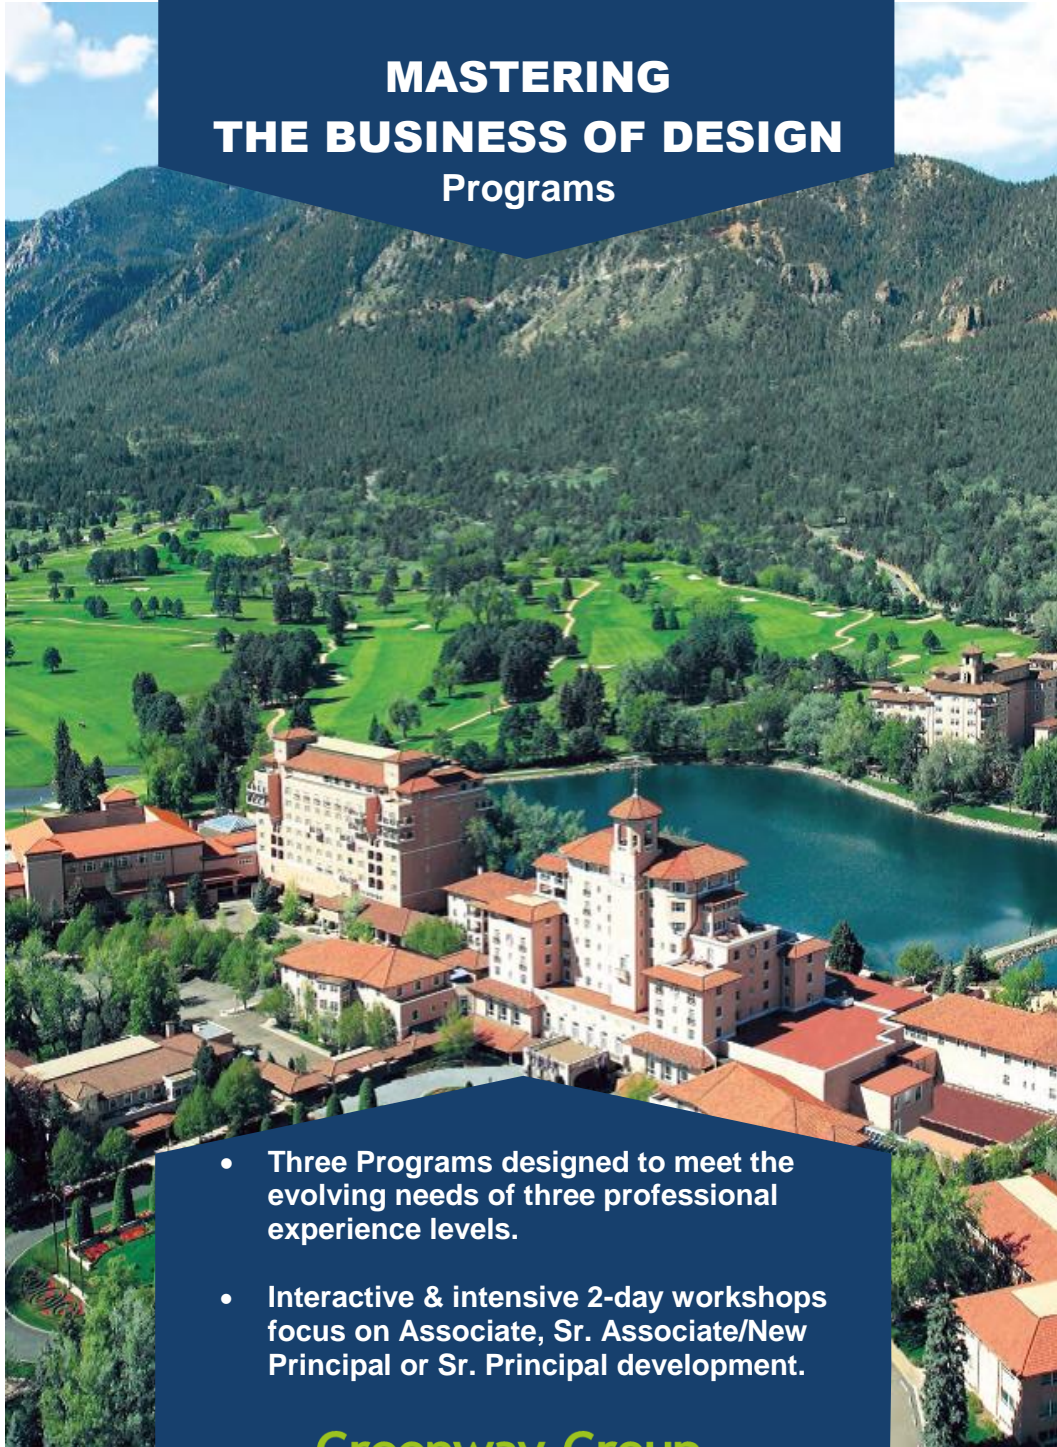

An emphasis on training and continuous learning is central to preparing for and mastering leadership and/or principal roles.

Greenway programs are designed to develop progressive levels of business management expertise to help current and future leaders thrive in their roles.

What to Expect from Greenway Development Programs
